Select Poetry.

NOBODY'S CHILD.

Alone in the dreary, pitiless street,
With my torn old dress and bare cold feet,
All day I've wandered to and fro,
Hungry and shivering, and nowhere to go;
The night is coming on in darkness and dread,
And the chill sleet coating upon my bare head:
Oh! why does the wind blow upon me so wild;
Is it because I am nobody's child?

Just over the way there's a flood of light,
And warmth and beauty and all things bright
Beautiful children in robes so fair
Are carolling songs in rapture there,
I wonder if they in their blissful glee
Would pitty a poor little beggar like me,
Wandering alone in the merciless street,
Naked and shivering, and nothing to eat.

Oh! what shall I do when the night comes down
In its terrible blackness over the town?
Shall I lay me down 'neath the angry sky,
On the cold hard pavement stone to die?—
When the beautiful children their prayers have said,
And mamma's have tucked them up snugly in bed,
No dear mother ever upon me smiled:
Why is it, I wonder? I'm nobody's child!

No father, no mother, no sister—not one
In all the wide world loves me; e'en the little dogs
When I wander too near them; 'tis wondrous to see
How every one shrinks from a beggar like me!
Perhaps 'tis a dream; but sometimes when I lie
Gazing far up in the dark blue sky,
Watching for hours some large, bright star,
I fancy the beautiful gates are ajar.

And a host of white robed nameless things
Come fluttering o'er me on gilded wings;
A hand that is strangely soft and fair,
Caresses gently my tangled hair,
And a voice like a carol of some wild bird—
The sweetest voice that was ever heard—
Calls me many a dear pet name,
'Till my heart and spirit are all aflame.

And tells me of such unbounded love,
And bids me come to their home above;
They look at me with their soft, sweet blue eyes,
From their starry home, in the azure skies,
And it seems to me, out of the dreary night,
I am going up to that world of light;
And away from the hunger and storm so wild
I am sure I shall then be—somebody's child!

History of the 49th Pennsylvania.

BY A. B. HUTCHISON, Late Captain of Company 'C.'

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

Battle of Lee's Mills—Picket firing—The Evacuation of Yorktown by the Enemy—Our March in Pursuit—Williamsburg—Battle of May 5, 1862—March to the Chickahominy

We found in the deserted works of the enemy in front of Yorktown, old stovepipes and logs, mounted as cannon in the embrazures of their earthworks.—Whether this was done to deceive our balloon man, who used to try to see what was going on over there, as was stated, or fixed up by our rebellious brethren as a joke on leaving, is a matter of doubt; but it is certain that we found more stovepipes and logs, than cannon, in the works we entered.

As we approached the town of Williamsburg, our Cavalry encountered their rear-guard, posted in rifle-pits, and were driven back some distance. Hancock's Brigade being in the advance, were moved forward in line of battle, to endeavor to dislodge them. Before the force was ready to attack, night came on; but as the moon was shining, we were directed to attack them by moonlight. Accordingly, we moved forward into a woods which had been set on fire, and in which we expected to find the enemy. A fence ran along the edge of the woods, in crossing which, our direction was so much changed that the line were thrown into some confusion, and as we reached the point where the woods was on fire, and where we expected to find the enemy, some of the troops commenced firing, which soon ran along the whole line—Clouds obscured the moon, and a scene of confusion, excitement and uncertainty ensued, which might have been a serious matter, but was only ludicrous, as it resulted. Finding how difficult the ground was, and that we had mistaken the position of the enemy, the attack was suspended, and the men directed to lie down in their places, where our line was established. Soon afterwards, rain commenced to fall.

On the morning of the 5th of May we rose early, the rain still continuing, packed up our wet blankets as best we could, collected what courage we were endowed with, and prepared for a fight, expecting to be led forward to attack the enemy at once. However, we were moved back to the edge of the woods, and directed to cook and eat breakfast.

By this time firing opened farther to the left, and we were informed that Hooker's Division had come up by another road, and were engaging the enemy. We remained quiet several hours, listening to the sound of the battle going on, seemingly without our having any part in it when; finally, orders to move aroused us, and we again girded ourselves for our nervously expected maiden battle. At about eleven o'clock we moved off towards our right, and making a circuit of several miles, approached a branch of Queens creek, which had been deepened by the enemy, by means of dams, to obstruct our crossing. The depth of water above, and the swamps below the breast of the dam, made the narrow road on the breast our only practicable crossing, and just on the bluffs at the end of this was an earthwork of the enemy. This we found deserted, however, and were quickly in possession of it, and formed in line on the other bank. Passing around the bluff, we came upon a large, open plain, skirted by a woods on our right, and commanded by a chain of redoubts and pits, similar to the one we had taken.—The first of these was abandoned also by the enemy, and they retreated from the second at our approach. We then moved forward in line to within about eight hundred yards of the main works of the rebels, known among our troops as Fort Magruder. They also held a redoubt nearer our line. Fighting continued in their front, and near our extreme left, but they seemed to pay but little attention to us. Our batteries commenced to throw shell at the fort, and the barracks near it, and we received a few in reply.

It continued to rain all the afternoon, and we lay quietly awaiting the course of events. The attention of the enemy seemed to be mainly directed towards our left; at times the firing was heavy and rapid. At about five o'clock, the enemy made an attempt to dislodge us from our position. The attack was sudden, their force moving on our right flank, under cover of the woods, and rapidly driving in the Fifth Wisconsin skirmishers, their line outnumbering ours, deployed quickly along our front. Coming on rapidly, in full view, we retired before them as far as the second redoubt we had taken, and awaited their attack. Our batteries, being only supplied with shell, soon became useless by reason of the shortness of the range, and we then opened with musketry, beginning on the right, and extending along the whole line. The enemy came on gallantly, cheering, until our fire threw them into confusion, when they beat a hasty retreat. A very few, only, came within about thirty yards of our line, where most of them fell. We then moved forward a short distance, and captured about a hundred prisoners, who had thrown themselves on the ground to escape our fire. About two hundred and fifty of their number were left killed and wounded on the field. The rain continued, and the little pools of water, on the old cornfield where the battle was fought, were many of them seemingly turned in to blood by the gore of our first battlefield's unfortunate victims. Our loss was remarkably small; there being but a few men wounded in the regiment, and but one of them mortally. In the entire brigade, the loss was but about sixty men killed and wounded. Hancock's brigade, by this brilliant contest, decided the day against the rebels, and the battle of Williamsburg was over. The rain fell in torrents, as though the clouds of heaven were weeping over the bloody scene; and weary and wet, and hungry, we lay down on the field to rest and sleep, disturbed by the groans of wounded men, for whom there was, as yet, no shelter.

Next morning the enemy was gone, and we encamped on the field. Gen'l McClellan visited us early in the morning, and complimented the brigade, highly, on their conduct in this matter. Our wounded were carried to the York river to be sent north. The weather became pleasant, and we were soon rested from our conflict.

On the 9th of May, four days after the battle, we resumed our march in pursuit of the enemy, marching to Burret Ordinary, a distance of thirteen miles, the first day. All along the road were evidences of a hasty retreat, broken wagons, dead horses, mired caissons, and a road so cut up by their trains, as to be almost impassable. Next day we remained in camp, and marched to a point near New Kent C. H., on the 11th, where we encamped again. On the 14th of May we moved to Cumberland landing, on the Pomunkey river. Here was organized the 5th corps commanded by Maj. Gen. W. B. Franklin, afterwards denominated the Sixth Army corps, to which our regiment was attached, and whose fortunes we shared during the rest of our history.

As soon as the corps was brought together, we moved on to White House, on the Pomunkey river, a place memorable as the former home of Mrs. Washington, at this time owned by Colonel Lee, a son of the rebel chieftain, who has given our army so much trouble. At this point our Depot of Supplies was established, cars and engines being brought up the river, and put on the York River Railroad, which crosses the Pomunkey at this point. Here were a large number of slaves, most of whom left after our occupation, some following the army, while others started to Fort Monroe. We were not permitted to destroy fences, here; but the great and fine wheat fields were trodden down by the troops, but whether for any particular reason, I cannot say. The fishery here supplied us with herring in abundence, which greatly improved our commissariat.

On the 22nd of May we commenced our advance on Richmond from the new base. Encamping, after a short march, we spent the night, and resumed our march early in the morning. On our march to-day we discovered a number of sweet potatoe hills, which were pits dug in the ground, and covered with rails planted in the sides, and forming a steep roof over them, which was rendered tight by straw and dirt. We soon reduced their contents to our own purposes, and improved, by so much, our daily rations.—We encamped that night near a Flouring mill, and had a fine view of our balloon, which was on a reconnoissance in front of us. The enemy attempted to shell it, and finally did cause it to return to Mother Earth. At this place we secured a considerable quantity of flour and corn meal, the mill being in the hands of a very accommodating negro, and its pond furnished us with fine baths which could be had for the taking. This camp was the scene of Cold Harbor's after struggles. Next day we marched to the banks of the Chickahominy, near New Bridge, and encamped in an orchard, this being Camp No. 19, in the field. Here we came into full view of the enemy's pickets, on the opposite banks of the Chickahominy, and almost within sight of the spires of Richmond. Our month before Richmond must form the theme of our next chapter.

A Funny Mistake.

What happened when Mr. Johnson Left the White House.

A Washington correspondent of The Sun tells an amusing story of how late on the night of March 4, a terrible ringing of the bell of the White House was heard. Grant was at his private residence, and the servants in charge were badly scared. Still the noise continued:

"Andy! ho, Andy! op'n the door!" shouted the mysterious individual, working away at the bell handle as if he were raking a stove. A short silence ensued.

"Come, come, open the door, I tell ye! Me'n Smythe's out here, an' its cold enough to freeze a spirit level!"

At this point one of the coachmen recognized the voice and sprang for the door saying:

"Why it's Dave—old Uncle Dave!—Yere, open this door, some o' ye, d—d quick!"

Ten seconds of suspense, and the key was turned in the lock, and the catch was unsprung. A heavy foot strode over the threshold, and two hundred pounds of solid flesh and overcoat rolled in the hall. The servants gathered about the mass in amazement.

"Tom, ho, you, Tom! S'the gas burnin' in my room? 'S Andy gone to bed? Confoun' ye, why didn'n' ye op'n th' door? Didn'n' ye know I was freezin'?"

"Why, Uncle Dave," was the reply, "didn't you know that to-day was Inauguration day, and that the President's left for good, and that General Grant runs the mill now?"

Uncle David unsteadily gazed at Tom for a few seconds, and a meaning smile passed over his face. "No, you don't," said he; "what d'you take me for?"—Then he straightened himself up in an effort at dignity, and continued: "Thomas, be careful how you joke with a United States Senator, and a son-in-law uv the President."

"Yes," answered Tom, "but you ain't a Senator no more, and he ain't a President any longer. Don't I tell ye that Grant is a runnin' the mill?"

"What?" roared the ex Senator from Tennessee, "and Andy's gone! an' Gid, an' Bill, an' Aleck, an' Hughey, an' Orv., an' all these lively fellows—all gone!—Well, well, well!"

For one minute the speaker put his hand to his forehead, then blew a long whistle, rolled out on the corridor, and disappeared among the trees lining the graveled walk to the White House.

It was ex Senator David T. Patterson, of Tennessee, who, in a fit of absence of mind, brought on by undue excitement attending the inauguration had reeled to the Executive Mansion, as in nights past, and demanded an entrance.

The Land Breezes.

Here is an ocean memory to which Mr. Beecher lately treated the old folks of his congregation:

"When, after the weary voyage that I first made across the ocean, sick and loathsome, I arose one morning and went upon the deck, holding on, crawling, thinking that I was but a worm, I smelt in the air some strange smell, and said to the captain, "What is the odor?" "It is the land breeze from off Ireland." I smelt the turf, I smelt the grass, I smelt the leaves, and all my sickness departed from me; my eyes grew bright; my nausia was gone. The thought of the nearness of the land came to me and cured me better than medicine could cure me. And when, afar off, I saw the dim line of land, joy came and gave me health, and from that moment, I had neither sickness nor trouble; I was coming near to the land.

"Oh! is there not for you, old man, and for you, wearied mother, a land breeze blowing off from Heaven, wafting to you some of its odors, some of its sweetness? Behold the garden of the Lord; it is not far away; I know from the air. Behold the joy of home. Do I not hear children shout? The air is full of music to our silent thoughts. Oh, how full of music when our journey is almost done, and we stand upon the bound and precinct of that blessed land. Hold on to your faith. Give not away to discouragement. Believe more firmly. Take hold by prayer and by faith. In a few hours visions of God, and of all the realities of the eternal world, shall be yours, and you shall be saved with an everlasting salvation.

Mr. Wilkins on Velocipedes.

BY JOHN QUILL.

From the Phil'a Eve. Bulletin.]

"But Wilkins, I—"

"I tell you, Mrs. Wilkins, I'm not going to have it; you may as well make up your mind to that at once. No woman shall ever go prancing around this community on a velocipede while she's a wife of mine if I can help it; so you can just take that old pair of wheels you brought home and gladden the heart of some kindling wood man with them, for ride on them you don't; if you do I'm a Dutchman; there!"

"Mr. Wilkins you know I—"

"No. I don't know anything of the kind. Do you think I'm going to let such a looking woman as you dress up in Bloomers, and mount a high hat, and go around trying to show of that figure—"

"Mr Wilkins!"

"Go straggling around the thoroughfares of this town, looking like an old beer-cask propped up on two legs, and showing those ankles which are so thick that you couldn't get one of them thro' the equator?"

"Wilkins, I'll scratch——"

"Well, I should think not. And, besides, I don't know where on this terrestrial globe you expect to find any wheels strong enough to bear you. You'd smash a pair of cast-iron car-wheels into smithereens the minute you sat down on them, you would. The best thing you can do is to walk, and on the ground, too, where the crust of the earth isn't thin; or else sit in front of a fire and melt down your avoirdupois."

"Mr. Wilkins you're perfectly scandalous."

"But I'm not going to put up with it. I don't intend to have you flopping round town on a velocipede, and very likely falling off and breaking your bones, and then having a lot of doctors coming to my house and making a post mortem examination, and sawing you up, and discovering things with hard Latin names in your lungs and your liver, and your physique generally. Well, I should think not! It's bad enough to have to submit to you now, without having your gore spilt over the carpet, and a parcel of sawbones blaspheming at your anatomy. I—"

"Mr. Wilkins, ain't you ashamed to talk so?"

"I want you to understand that if you ride that velocipede I'll sue for a divorce. I don't believe in a woman exercising her muscles on any such contrivance. You'd a good deal better get a scrubbing brush, and go down and tackle the front door steps with some good sand and a chunk of soap. That's the kind of exercise you want, in my opinion."

"Mr. Wilkins, if you'll only listen—"

Wednesday Morning, March 17, '69.

The New Cabinet Members.

As we anticipated last week, some very important changes have been made in Gen. GRANT's Cabinet. Mr. STEWART, on account of ineligibility, resigned, and Mr. BOUTWELL, of Mass., takes his place. Hon. E. M. WASHBURN, in consequence of ill health, resigned his position as Secretary of State, and HAMILTON FISH, of New York, was appointed in his stead.—Gen. SCHOFIELD resigned his position as Secretary of War, and Gen. JOHN A. RAWLINS, formerly chief of Gen. GRANT's Staff, was immediately appointed by the President to fill that important place. Of these appointments, says the Philadelphia Press, every Republican will speak in the most liberal manner.

The Secretary of State, Hon. HAMILTON FISH, of New York city, is an able and accomplished citizen. Born in 1809, he has reached that period in life when all the powers of a man are fully matured, and when his ambitions are least likely to conflict with his reason. A graduate of one of the oldest and best colleges in his State, he has never neglected his education, but has kept his mind fully qualified for all his varied business duties, as well as for the amenities that distinguish the gentleman of letters and refinement. Admitted to the bar in 1830, a brilliant career as a lawyer lay before him, and although deflected by choice of politics a few years later, he never lost his prestige as counsellor or pleader. His ability in this respect is of the most undoubted kind. Thoroughly acquainted with details, his large public experience has rubbed off the angular peculiarities of the court-room habitue, and given to his thoughts the comprehensiveness of the finished statesman.

Mr. FISH's political career began in 1843, when elected to Congress for one term. His promotion was deservedly rapid. In 1848 he was chosen Governor of his native State, and from 1851 to 1857 filled the position of United States Senator. In all these offices he acquitted himself with honor, never descending into partisanship, but firmly adhering to matured convictions of right. At the breaking out of the war, he paused not in his devotion to the flag, and during the bloody years of its continuance he gave unswerving accord to the principles which Union bayonets wrenched from the enemy.—Since, he has stood unflinchingly by the Republican party, and has, in many notable instances, proved one of the wisest of its counsellors. He therefore approaches his new duties full of qualification, and with an understanding of its responsibilities, heightened by observant travel among the nations which give importance to our diplomacy.—Mr. WASHBURNE could have had no more fitting successor, and the premier of Auburn may not even have proved so satisfactory to the American and foreign public as we prophesy the new Secretary will.

The selection of Mr. BOUTWELL for the Secretaryship of the Treasury is eminently wise. This gentleman will prove especially acceptable to the country. He has been before the country as a prominent member of the House for years, and his record is unblemished. All through the trying times of war, and the eventful years of peace, he has been a model of Republican consistency. Like the late THADDEUS STEVENS, he clings with tenacity to the few elementary principles of government rather than allow himself to be distracted by multiform and conflicting theories. He is a careful student, and has acquired an enviable mastery over the complicated problems of finance, as his propositions and speeches in the House abundantly prove. His amiability makes him easily approachable, and his readiness to hear and learn inspires confidence. No part of his Congressional record is brighter than that which relates to impeachment. From the first to the last he insisted, with the firmness of one thoroughly grounded in constitutional law, upon the removal of that great Executive Accident whose unbridled ambition led him to thwart the wishes of the people. Of the many tributes to eloquence and sound legal construction rendered on that occasion, Mr. BOUTWELL's stands among the first.

Like General GRANT, the new Secretary is a self-made man. Commencing life as a farmer's boy, he passed through all the offices of honor, trust, or profit, in his native State, before being called upon as a Representative.

He is now fifty-one years of age, and this past is a guarantee that in his new position he will acquit himself to the entire satisfaction of the people.

It is with an unusual degree of pride that we refer to Major General JOHN A. RAWLINS, the new Secretary of War. He is about forty-five years of age, a gentleman of fine culture and unexceptionable deportment. As an attorney he ranks high. His acquaintance with Gen. GRANT preceded the war many years, and he went with him into the field. The intimacy between them and their mutual confidence were the birth of peace, but they were nurtured to perfection amid the smoke of battle and the exposures of the march. Originally a Douglass Democrat, his aspirations but awaited occasion, when fierce and quick they bound into the arena where Liberty was struggling with the Gorgon Slavery. The stars that crown his shoulders are indices of that courage which fastened not, as well as of that administrative ability which attends enlarged scholarship.

* * * * * * * * *

Were the intrinsic qualifications of General RAWLINS for his position less prominent, the history of his intimate association with General GRANT would afford a guarantee of faithful performance of all duties.

This brief review of the appointments may serve to show that there is a peculiar fitness about each one of them. The adjustment appears to be complete so far as sagacity can make it so. The President will feel at home when in council with his advisers, and their deliberations will consequently be fraught with good results.

A general acquiesence in the selections will be given by the public, and the Administration may now start on a career of prosperity which it deserves and which the party and the country expects.

Sham Democrats in Indiana.

The Democratic members of the Indiana Legislature resigned their places and deprived the House of a quorum, in order to prevent the ratification of the Fifteenth Constitutional Amendment. Gov. BAKER, immediately issued a proclamation ordering special elections to be held to fill the vacancies, and a special session will be held in April. This revolutionary movement on the part of the Democrats will cost the State, or rather the taxpayers of that State, the neat little sum of $100,000. This shows how little they care about the people's money. It shows that they do not regard the will of the people. They secede from the Legislature to defeat the will of the majority, and would secede from the Union if they had the power. Such men, and such leaders, are a disgrace to, and a libel upon, the word Democracy. They are secessionists at heart. Their sympathies are with England, or a monarchical form of Government, where the few rule the many, and the poor are crushed beneath the iron heal of the oppressor. For this the rebels fought in the late Rebellion, and for this reason they had the sympathies of the Democratic party.

Acting upon this same principle, as we have already stated, they resigned their seats in the Indiana Legislature to defeat an Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which is intended to make this Government purely Democratic in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Declaration of Independence. It is no use, gentlemen. Equal suffrage before two years will be the law of the land. You must, therefore, get out of the way of the wheel of progress, or be run over and crushed. Justice cannot stop for laggards.

The Elections Since the Inauguration of President Grant.

Our Democratic friends have boasted for some time past that the passage of the Constitutional Amendment would destroy the party. Well, several elections have been held since its passage, which have resulted as follows:

In New Hampshire, where a Republican was elected last year by a majority of about twenty-five hundred, an election was held on the 9th inst, and the result is:

For Stearns (Republican)	27,824
For Bedell (Democrat)	23,026
Republican majority	4,798

The Republicans elected all their candidates for Congress, and out of 12 Senators elected this year, ten of them are Republicans, a gain of four.

Another election was held in Camden, N. J., and the Republican candidate for mayor received a majority of over five hundred, somewhat larger than Gen. GRANT received last fall.

Bridgeport, N. J., has also endorsed the administration of Gen. GRANT, by electing the whole Republican ticket in every ward by increased majorities.

THERE will be a grand Reunion of the Army of the Potomac at N. York on July 5th. We hope to meet there, a large representation of the officers and soldiers from Pennsylvania, who were so numerous in that army during its eventful history.

The officers of the old Sixth Corps have formed a society called the 6th Army Corps Legion, Head Quarters at Philadelphia, which all officers of that Corps are urged to join. The initiation is $2.50, and the annual dues $3.00. Officers should address Col. JAS. R. NEILER, Station A, Phil'a., for enrollment as members, enclosing fee.

GEN. FRANK P. BLAIR, Jr., who was once "talked of" for the Vice Presidency by a small party of political allies of the "Lost Cause," and who was appointed by A. J. to the position of a Pacific Railroad Commissioner, was unceremoniously removed on Saturday by the "despotic" move. President GRANT does not like corrupt and unprincipled men.—like corrupt and unprincipled soldiers who fought for the country, and now vote as they shot. He does not like demagogues and selfish revolutionary politicians.—Hence FRANK P. is kicked out, the BLAIR family ignored. The new Administration will be a success.

Our Western Letter.

MY DEAR REPUBLICAN:—This Chicago town is a great place for sensations, and for doing "big things."—Everything done is on a grand scale. Real estate sales, buildings, speculations, preaching and theatricals, are decidedly on the magnificent. When persons marry, they do it hugely—they marry all over, and when they are tired of it they get divorced with a rush. The more publicity a Chicago divorce case attains, the better the parties like it, as a general thing. We have a few women who are married and divorced annually, and in each case it is done with a grand flourish of trumpets. Chicago women are gotten up on a grand scale—with grecian bend, pannier, high-heeled boots, artificial calves, palpitators, plumpers, switches, chignons and the like, they are certainly fearfully and wonderfully made; though some are fair to look upon. I don't approve of the palpitators and false calves. They are not only unnatural, but are so discouraging to a fellow.

Some of the young men of this moral city are gotten up regardless of expense. This is not surprising, for even in Bellefonte this is the case. There is, however, less of the fop element here than any city I ever saw. Most men here are real.

Among the numerous other big things, we very frequently have enormous fires. Only two nights ago we had a $75,000 fire which resulted in the death of four of our devoted firemen. The brave fellows mounted the roof of a five story building which was in flames. The roof gave way and four of them were swallowed up in the flames. A fifth sprang off, and in his descent caught the telegraph wire with his hands. With his hands and teeth he held on until relief came. The four who went down were taken out black, charred and dead. Two of the unfortunates had served with honor during the war. They passed through the terrible ordeal of battle unscath-ed—through Chickamauga, and Shiloh, the Wilderness, to return and become victims of the fire-fiend. Each of them held, as do all Chicago's firemen, a $2,000 life insurance policy, presented them by the citizens. I doubt very much if any city in America has such a fire department as Chicago has. Every part of the city is connected by a fire alarm telegraph, the observatory on the Court House, where an operator is over on the watch to receive dispatches and transmit them to the different engine houses. By the time the public alarm is sounded the steamers from all directions are thundering along the streets to the scene of the fire. Oh, how the firemen work, and how thoroughly every man knows his place and business. No excitement, no useless running to and fro, but work, work, until the fire is extinguished. When life is at stake how nobly these men exert themselves, and risk life and limb to save it. The instances are not few where Chicago firemen have perished in their heroic attempts to save life and property. And this is why our citizens insured the lives of the firemen by voluntary subscription.

And these steam fire engines, what beauties they are, and how effective. Without them Chicago would be ablaze all the time. Fire after fire breaks out, but the fewest number succeed, because of the effectiveness of our engines and the energy of our fire department. I hope Bellefonte has an engine or two of this description. Surely the property owners are not so blind as to be without one at least. I remember the days of the old bucket brigade of Bellefonte; but I hope its days are numbered. One steam fire engine with the requisite number of men would accomplish more than all the men and women in the town in line, with all the old milk and swill pails they could scare up. A big fire will occur in Bellefonte some day which will destroy enough property to pay for twenty engines. Then your stocking leg capitalists will look in vain for their hidden treasures, for stocking legs will burn and so will greenbacks. Get down your old shot bags, and pour out your old-time silver which has lain their for years.—Hunt up your boxes, open your miserly souls, if you have any, and give enough of your hoardings to purchase at least what will protect the balance of your money from destruction by fire. Do this much at least, if you never put a penny into circulation or contribute a dollar to the improvement of your town. Oh! beautiful town, what a pity you are afflicted with the presence of men whose fists remain forever clenched when they should be open-handed and open-hearted in the matter of public improvement. Oh, silvery, beautiful, powerful spring creek—how blind the policy which allows your waters to pass by untramelled, almost unheeded, to the bosom of old Baldy, when they might be made to turn ten thousand spindles.

"But," as the fat contributor says, "to return back to my subject."—Among the things which Chicago is doing big at this time, is the velocipede. Velocipedestrianism is the sensation now. This section is well calculated for this kind of hoss, for here the land lies on its side instead of standing on its edge as it does in Pennsylvania. Of course we have not so much land to the acre as if it stood on edge; but it is better for velocipedes, for although this animal runs down hill quite easily, it is somewhat balky when you undertake to ride it up hill. It is decidedly "up hill business." A man has about all the business he wants, to ride one on the level ground, and you may properly charge the rider with being a "busy body." The velocipede is an excellent means of developing the muscles. I have seen persons develope the muscles of the head and face in one attempt to ride. You can also reduce the flesh on your body if you desire to bring yourself down to your fighting weight. I saw a man reduce his flesh considerably the other day by coming in contact with a picket fence. He objects to going on picket again. I like to see young ladies on velocipede-back. Women, you know, are more agile than men, and I think this the best possible means of showing their agility! Oh, how I would love to embrace some of the velocipedes I have seen. You have doubtless heard of the poetry of motion. Get a nice female girl on a prancing steed of this description, and "poetry of motion" don't express it. A lady rides on one side of an ordinary horse; but on the velocipede everybody is compelled to ride on both sides. In fact I have seen new beginners ride all over a velocipede, and over considerable ground besides. One lady, whose husband is learning to ride, wants to know what remedy to apply to give him rest at night. She says he takes a position on his back, and keeps up the motions of a velocipedist all night. It is generally necessary to break an ordinary horse, before using; but this is unnecessary with the velocipede. In fact, they are more useful, when not broken at all.

The "coming woman" still holds her place among the sensations of the day in Chicago. An amusing conversation was overheard the other day, as follows:

"Sam, did—did yer (hic) see anything of my wife?"

"I have not the honor of knowing your wife, sir."

"Don't apologize, Sam; don't apo-po-hic-logize. I-i-its no honor, whatever. Did y-e-r see her?"

"I did not!"

"How yer know yer didn't? She's as tall as a meetin' house, and as broad as a lamp post, and she wears a gingin umbreller, and one eye out, and her nose (hic) is done up in specs. Didn't yer see her?"

"No, sir," emphatically.

"That's all right, Sam; that's all right; merely ask firmmerashun. She (hic) says she was going to join the sory-ory-sisters, and if she does, I mean to get blind stavin' drunk.—Wouldn't you?"

I confess, Mr. REPUBLICAN, that I am disappointed in not being invited to a seat in Mister Grant's Cabinet.—He said, some time ago, that those appointed, would be persons least expecting it. This was the rock on which I built my hopes; but I suppose there are plenty other prominent men, like me, disappointed, and possibly some of them are Pennsylvanians, too.—Well, well, we can't all be cabinets, and I presume we will have to be content. Your own EM QUAD.

Mr. Stewart Declines.

The following is the letter of Mr. STEWART to President GRANT declining the Treasury Appointment:

WASHINGTON, March 9, 1869.

To the President—DEAR SIR: Appreciating the high honor conferred by your nomination and the unanimous confirmation by the Senate of myself to the office of Secretary of the treasury, I regret that circumstances beyond our control compel me to decline. Could the difficulties presented by the provisions of the act of 1789, which, in organizing the department of the treasury, prohibits the secretary from being directly or indirectly concerned or interested in carrying on the business or trade of commerce, be overcome by any reasonable sacrifice to myself, I would willingly make it. I would promptly transfer to gentlemen in whom the public have full confidence every interest in the gains and profits that could possibly accrue to myself in the business of my house during my official term to be applied to such public charities as their judgement should dictate, and have proposed and sought by the execution of appropriate instruments to accomplish that end. But serious differences of opinion have been expressed as to whether that course would satisfy the requirements of the law, and although I will not hesitate to make this appropriation, provided it would enable me to accept the office and thus unite my efforts with your own and other members of your cabinet in restoring economy, honesty and strict frugality in the administration of the government, and lifting as rapidly as practicable from the people the great burdens of taxation, debt and extravagance resting upon them, yet the business relations of my firm, and its connection with others largely interested in their continuance, are such that they cannot be severed summarily, nor can my interest in it be wholely and absolutely disposed of without producing great embarrassment and loss to those with whom I have been connected. I cannot consent to enter upon the administration of laws by any act or course that can be construed into a disregard or violation of the law, and while, therefore, I regret that the plan proposed is deemed inadequate to relieve me from legal, and as it seems to me, technical disabilities, I yield to the better judgment of others rather than seem to be willing to accept a position in disrespect of law. In finally renewing the declination which was tendered at the outset of these objections, I repeat to you, Mr. President, my thanks for the honor done me in offering this high position, and assure you that you will have my earnest efforts to sustain your administration in carrying out the wise and salutary measures indicated by you on entering upon your office.

Sincerely your friend,
ALEXANDER T. STEWART.

Whatever may be the opinions entertained by people in regard to the propriety of the appointment of Mr. STEWART, honest men everywhere will think more highly of him for his noble letter. He has shown a spirit worthy of his honorable reputation, and fully justifying the sagacity of the President in selecting him for the responsible duties of Secretary of the Treasury.

Nos. 57 Milk, 78 & 84 Devonshire Street Boston, Mass.

I want to rouse each sleepy head
Who stand upon the brink,
Where yawning gulfs disclose the dead,
Who might, but did not think.

I want to warn the living ones
Who blindly grope along,
Ye fathers, daughters, mothers, sons,
What perils round you throng!

Look our, my reader, are you free,
Or do you wear the mark?
Most all are blind and cannot see,
Yes, groping in the dark.

Catarrh, a demon in the head,
Consumption is its son,
Kills hosts, yea, countless millions dead,
Perhaps you may be one.

That hacking, hawking, spitting, shows,
Catarrh effects your head,
Matter and slime in throat or nose,
Runs down your throat instead.

Your lungs and liver soon will show,
Consumption has its birth;
Catarrh, its sire, will feed it too,
'Till you return to earth.

If colds affect your head and throat,
ANNIHILATOR buy;
Now don't forget what I have wrote,
Or think this subject dry.

WOLCOTT'S ANNIHILATOR cures,
Catarrh—the demon flees;
It save the lungs, good health insures,
And Catarrh quickly dies.

I want to gratify my friends,
Who wish to understand
About PAIN PAINT, its use, its ends,
And Why its great demand.

I want to show you plain as day,
Why PAIN PAINT stops all pain,
That you may never have to say
"I'll not try paint again."

PAIN PAINT will cool but never stain;
Pumps inflamation out;
'Tis harmless on the breast or brain,
A trial stops all doubt.

When inflamation leaves the frame,
All pain will cease at once;
Remove the cause, 'tis all the same;
None doubts unless a dunce.

The pores will ope and drink PAIN PAINT;
Absorbents fill with ease;
Restores the weak, the sick, the faint,
The greatest skeptic pleases.

Evaporation cools the place
As inflamation flies;
Hot blood at the absorpent's base
Makes PAINT in vapor rise.

'Tis thus PAIN PAINT removes all doubt,
Removes the very cause
By pumping inflamation out;
On this we rest our cause.

WOLCOTT'S PAIN PAINT is sold at all Drug Stores; also, Wolcott's Annihilator, for the cure of Catarrh and Colds in the head. Sent by Express on receipt of the money, at 181, Chatham Square, N. Y. R. L. WOLCOTT, Prop'r. fe24'69 4w.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, March 17, '69.

THE Drug Store of F. P. Green will be removed, April 1st, 1869, from Brockerhoff's row, to the new Hotel of Bush & McLain, over the creek. Jan. 20tf.

FOR SALE.—A first class farm, within two miles of Bellefonte, is now for sale. Any person wishing to buy, can learn full particulars, by calling at the office of the Bellefonte Republican.

HOUSE TO LET.—Any person wishing to rent a good house, containing three rooms down, and three up stairs, with a good cellar, can learn full particulars by calling at the office of the REPUBLICAN.

OYSTER SUPPER.—An oyster supper will be given by the ladies of the Independent Order of Good Templars of this place, on Tuesday evening next, at the house of Mrs. Kephart. This is a praiseworthy work on the part of the ladies of this Lodge, and deserves, not only the commendations of the public, but their most liberal support, financially.

CELEBRATION.—This day the members of the St. Patrick's Temperance Society, of this place, will have a grand procession in full regalia, and in the evening, a Lecture will be delivered in the Court House by Rev P. O'Shea, of Loretta.

The public are invited to attend and join in the ceremony without regard to race, creed, religion or political views on national questions.

ACCIDENT.—A sad accident occurred on last Wednesday, the 10th inst. which resulted in the death of Mr. Hiram Stein Mr. Stein went out to split some wood that he had cut two or three days before and while thus engaged an old tree that stood close by fell, a limb of which struck him on the head felling him to the earth. Mr. Stein survived the stroke about three hours. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss. Mr. Stein had attached himself to the M. E. Church about two weeks since.

TRUE.—An exchange gets up the following: "The boy who lurks and lounges about with a gang annoying families, or who indulges the wicked habit of insulting persons who pass by his lounging place, or in assaulting people who give no offence, or who thinks it the proper sort of thing to take a drink when he is out for a "spree" at night, or on Sunday, is in constant danger of just the kind of rows and broils that end in bloodshed and murder. At one end of his career, is this habitual lounging, loafing disorder, dissipation or roffianism, and at the other, if he keeps on in the same path, is the prison or the gallows."

RAILROAD EMPLOYES.—The new law relative to railroad employes provides as follows: If any person or persons in the service or employ of a railroad or other transportation company, doing business in Pennsylvania, shall refuse or neglect to obey any rule or regulation of such company, or by reason of negligence or wilful misconduct shall fail to observe any precaution or rule which it was his duty to obey and observe, and injury or death resulted to any person or persons by such neglect, the person or persons so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, and to undergo an imprisonment in the county jail or State penitentiary not exceeding five years. It is made the duty of the county District Attorneys to prosecute offenders against this law.

DR. HOLAHAN.—It affords us pleasure to invite the attention of our readers to the "Professional card" of Dr J. F. Holahan. We have known the Doctor long and well; and, although it is stated in his card that he has left Emporium to settle in Milesburg, at the solicitation of many friends, his return is to his native county. The friends who solicited his return, are those who have known him from boyhood to the present time, and who have always admired his industry, genious and superior talent. The people of Bald Eagle Valley will find in him a well read Physician, a faithful, true and accomplished man.

YOUTH.—Who wastes his youth, begars himself for life. Youth is the time to store the intellect with knowledge, and whoever fails to lay the foundation for scientific and literary attainments then, if he has the opportunity, is never likely to do so; or, should he attempt it he never can make up the loss from early negligence. Youth is the time to form a virtuous character. The mind is then open; the heart is then receptive; all he affections are in a plastic state to be moulded by the influences of heaven and earth, given by divine providence to elevate and save; and whoever does not then lay up the "rewards" through which God may be present in the inmost of man, is not likely to do so afterward, or attempting it must come far short of what it was his privilege to become.

TRADE AT HOME.—Every man's interest is consulted by encouraging his home trade. Support him as well as you supply his own wants in his own city, county, or State, as elsewhere, he wrongs him-elf when he goes elsewhere to spend his money. When it is known that this is his rule of action every fair dealer in his neighborhood will aim to trade with him so as to enable him to realize the worth of his money. It is an injury to the place in which you live, to use your spare money for the benefit of a place elsewhere, and thus create a rival. Build up your own home interests, thereby you increase the value of your own property. You will share in the profits if you want to sell and remove at any time. A lively, thriving town, invites new settlers, enterprise and capital, which are but additions to the aggregate wealth of our home. If one is to enjoy life, and is fit for it, he must desire to see those around him prosper. His law is "live and let live."

PERSONS wishing posters printed, should call and examine specimens at the REPUBLICAN office.

WOULD it not be well enough for our City Fathers to build a market house before expending too much money on a Park?

SHORTLIDGE & Co.—This is the place to buy good coal, wood and coal burnt lime, shingles, pailing, lumber, wood by the cord, &c., &c.

THE BUSH HOUSE is the name of the new Hotel at the depot. It will be open to the public about the 1st of May next, under the charge of Bush & Howell.

We understand that Col. Smith has a velocipede on exhibition some place in town. We have not been to see it, and can impart no information as to its whereabouts.

JAMES DUNLAP Esq., of Pine Grove Mills will act as agent for the Republican and will receive subscriptions, advertisements, etc., and receive and receipt for, payment for us.—EDS. REPUBLICAN.

A NEW velocipede has been invented. It has but one wheel, the rider sits between the spokes and turns the crank with his hands, and revolves with the wheel. The only objection to it is, that it would be unsafe for women to ride on.

HOWELL, GILLILAND & Co.—This firm is doing a splendid business and their customers are increasing daily. The reason is, they keep constantly on hand nearly everything that the people want, and advertise in the REPUBLICAN. Mr. Howell, we understand, is now in Philadelphia for the purpose of purchasing their Spring supply of fish, groceries, dry goods, and such other things as may be necessary to perfect the variety of this large establishment. †

DR. H. H. ROTHROCK.—We understand that Dr Rothrock has left town, and will be absent for two weeks. When his numerous customers learn that he has gone to Philadelphia and New York for the purpose of supplying himself with the latest improved instruments, and fully booking himself on some of the scientific advancement made within the last year in dentistry, they will wait with patience, his return. The Doctor is determined to keep master of his profession. †

"THUS MY LORD."—The Harper Brothers say that notwithstanding the scarcity of money, they have realized quite an increase in their business since the advent of the Republican, and since they have chosen it as the medium through which to advertise their business. We believe every word of it, and the reason is obvious. Nearly everybody reads the Republican, and those who have not already subscribed for it, are intending to do so, at their earliest convenience. The Harper Brothers deserve success. †

FOR SALE.—H. P. Caldwallader offers for sale his house and lot situate in Potter township near Potter's Mills. The lot contains six acres, having thereon erected a good frame dwelling house, a good frame stable, with the necessary out buildings, all in good order. There are also upon the lot 12 apple trees just commencing to bear and a good assortment of other fruit. A good cistern and a never-failing well of good water at the door of the house. Persons wishing a good home in that locality would do well to call upon, or address H. P. Caldwallader, Potter's Mills, Centre county, Pa.

EARLY MARRIAGES.—The following good advice from Rev. H. W. Beecher will no doubt please our young men and maiden readers. We publish it for their especial benefit:

"At no period, perhaps, in their life do young men need the inspiration of virtuous love and the sympathy of a companion as when they first enter the battle for their own support. Early marriages are permanent moralities, and deferred marriages are temptations to wickedness. And yet every year it becomes more and more difficult, concurrent with the reigning ideas of society, for young men to enter upon that matrimonial state which is the proper guard of their virtue as well as the source of their courage and enterprise.

It is to be regretted that the "authorities that be" do not enter into arrangements for the renovating of the Court House. A few coats of paint would preserve the building from decay and make it more ornamental to our thriving young city.

The fence which encloses the Court House, or rather which was intended to enclose it, should be repaired at once. It is a disgrace to the Commissioners, the Town and the County, in its present condition. The yard should be beautified by planting ten or a dozen evergreens in it, and arrangements should be made without delay to have the officials of the "ring" go elsewhere for cow pasture.

JUBILEE.—A collation and jubilee will be held by the Sabbath School of Zion's Ev. Lutheran Congregation of Boalsburg for the benefit of the S. S. Library, on Thursday and Friday evenings, March 25th and 26th, 1869.

The Jubilee will be held in the lower chamber of the Academy building. The exercises will consist of vocal and instrumental music, short addresses and moral dialogues by the scholars.

The collation will be served in the school room of the Academy and a large cake, presented for the occasion, will be allotted to the person receiving the highest number of votes.

The "Boalsburg Saxhorn Band" will be present, and discourse music on the occasion. Admission to Jubilee exercises, 15cts; children 10cts. Admission to room in which Collation is served, 10 cents; children 5 cents. Exercises will commence at 7 o'clock P. M., each evening. Let the friends of christianity, and all in favor of Sunday Schools, and the moral training of the young, attend, and by their presence, and money, aid in the good cause. †

THERE are several brick houses in Bellefonte if stained and penciled would add much to their outward beauty.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—We learn that Dr. George L. Potter, assisted by Drs. Beattie and Blair, amputated the limb of a Mr. Hall, residing near Unionville, who was a private in the army, and received a gun-shot wound in the right leg, which produced caires of both bones of the leg, rendering the above operation necessary. In one month after the operation, he was able to be in town. This proves the ability and skill of the Physicians, as well as the great advantage of having such skilled Surgeons in our midst.

EXECUTOR'S SALE.—The real estate of, Hugh Tonner, late of Potter tp., dec'd is offered at public sale, on the premises, by H. P. Caldwallader, Executor.

It consists of one lot containing 3 acres, also a lot containing 8 acres and 58 perches, making, in all, eleven acres and thirty-eight perches, and allowance.—Also one other lot of land adjoining the above, containing five acres and 108 perches. This property, we understand, will be sold separately, or together, to suit purchasers. There is a good dwelling house, and necessary out-houses on the premises. The terms of the sale, we believe are, one-half in hand, the balance in one year, secured by bond and mortgage upon the premises.

DO YOU WANT TO BE SHAVED?—If you do, you need not go to any of the banks to have it done. They shave close enough, in all conscience, everybody knows, and if they do draw blood are not very careful to pour oil and wine into the wound. With them it is the "whole hog or none," even to the exacting of the last "pound of flesh." Not so with the most justly celebrated Barber in Central Pennsylvania—M. Graham. He shaves with razor sharp and keen; draws no blood, but shaves you clean; the "pound of flesh" does not demand, and Shylocks are compelled to stand,—or sit, and wait their call, while justice is dealt out to all; "equal and exact," as all will see, the white yields to the equality; allows M. Graham to pull his nose. (queer world, is this,) but so it goes; what he ve you done, yer ranting Rad? it is too much, it is, egad.

THE RAILROAD.—It would appear, says the Lewisburg Chronicle, that the proposed Railroad from Lewisburg to Bellefonte, is gradually getting into a tangible shape. The right spirit now prevails, and we hope those who are possessed will not let go until the much valuable benefit is placed beyond a doubt.

The following is a report of the recent meeting:

Pursuant to public notice given, a meeting of the friends of the extension of the Lewisburg Branch Railroad was held at Deckard's Hotel, Mifflinburg, on Monday, March 8th. Hon. J. W. Simonton presided, and J. E. Herr, Esq., was chosen Secretary. Remarks favorable to immediate action were made by S. S. Barber, Hon. Eli Slifer, W. C. Duncan, and others. Hon. Eli Slifer offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of citizens of the Borough and Town-ship interested be appointed, whose duty it shall be to appoint meetings in their respective localities to promote the interests of the railroad, and to confer with citizens of Centre county for the purpose of arranging for a joint meeting at some convenient point.

The following gentlemen were appointed:

Hartley—R. V. B. Lincoln, Jno. Dishl.

Hartleton—Dr. W. F. Seebold, Daniel Long.

Lewis—Wm. E. Smith, Joseph Sanders, Benjamin Mench.

Limestone—S. S. Barber, David Pollman.

Mifflinburg—Wm. Young, C. H. Shriner, Dr. D. H. Miller, Henry G. Wolf.

Buffaloe—Wm. Steans, W. T. Linn.

East Buffaloe—Michael Brown, Jacob Frederick.

Lewisburg—W. C. Duncan, Wm. Cameron, Mark Halfpenny, John Walls, Eli Slifer.

West Buffaloe—Levi Shoemaker, Geo. M. Royer.

On motion of Wm. Young, a committee was appointed to correspond with citizens of Centre county to arrange for the joint meeting of Union and Centre counties.

C. H. Shriner and J. R. Orwig were appointed. The following resolutions, expressive of the sentiment of the meeting were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, 1st, That the best interests of Union county demand the early extension of the Lewisburg Branch Railroad to some western connection, and that we pledge our best efforts to secure the same as early as possible.

Resolved, 2nd, That we cordially invite the co-operation of every farmer, mechanic, merchant and laboring man, in the great Buffaloe and Penns Valleys in this present effort to secure a Railroad.

ALLEGHENY COLLEGE.—It is so seldom that we hear any thing from our Alma Mater, that we read with great pleasure the following item of news in regard to her, from the Meadville Republican, and now publish it for the benefit of her friends, and the many young men who may wish a thorough education. It is a first class college:

"The catalogue of this institution for 1868-9 has just been printed at this office. The attendance of students is much larger than during any former year since the opening of the war. The Senior class numbers 21; Junior 8; Sophomore 25; Freshman 36; Preparatory 51; making a total of 141. Notwithstanding the financial obstacles which for a time threatened the success of the College, its progress has been gratifying and highly encouraging. Its outfit of apparatus and all that goes to make up a first class College is the best in the State, and the course of study is equal to that of the most celebrated institutions in the country. The Faculty deserve the highest praise for the energy and perseverance which they have displayed in their worthy efforts to place it in the front rank of American schools of learning."

ACTION of the Vestry of St John's Church, Bellefonte, Pa., in reference to the death of the Hon. Charles Shaler:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Divine Providence, by death, to remove from among us, the Hon. Charles Shaler, our late associate, and fellow member in the Vestry and Congregation of St. John's Church, Bellefonte, Pa., and

WHEREAS, We feel it due to the memory of the deceased, and to ourselves, to place upon record some testimonial of our high regard for him as a gentleman, and as a christian, and our sense of the loss we have sustained by his death.—Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in our intercourse with Judge Shayler, during the term of his connection with this Parish, we have ever found him illustrating with fidelity, the character of the true, christian gentleman; and, that now by his decease, we feel that in our social and church relations, we have sustained a very grievous loss. And, further, having, from our knowledge of his domestic life, some appreciation of the severity of this stroke to his bereaved family, we would, in all sincerity, extend to them this expression and assurance of our christian sympathy with them in their sorrow, praying that the Divine Healer may pour into their stricken hearts the comforting and sanctifying influence of His spirit's presence and support.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be forwarded to the family of the deceased, and others be furnished for publication in the religious and secular press.

HOW TO BUILD UP LIBRARIES.—Cleveland, says the Meadville Republican, has set up a free library, under one of the best laws of Ohio, which authorizes a tax of one-tenth of a mill to be levied for free libraries, in every city with a population exceeding 20,000 inhabitants.—The young library is under 6,000 volumes, but the achievement is of infinite value in the example thus offered to the people of other States and cities.

Pennsylvania should have a similar law. We should have a law, rather, which would apply to every city and borough, regardless of the number of inhabitants. With such a law, how long would it take to establish a library in our town, that would be a credit to the institution, and the means of saving many of our young men from falling into bad habits, consequent upon idleness and want of good and interesting books.

If P. G. Meek desires to render his name immortal by doing one noble act, let him at once move in this matter, and secure the passage of the law.

We fear, however, he will not do it, because it would enlighten the minds of young America, and as they would arrive at the proper age to exercise the elective franchise, would invariably vote the Republican ticket. It is passing strange how the leaders of the Democratic party oppose Registration laws, and all other laws, looking either to the enlightenment, honesty or morals of the people. They act upon the principle—

"Where ignorance is bliss,
'Tis folly to be wise."

BELLEFONTE & LEWISBURG R. R.—The following letter was written, and no doubt intended as private; but it is so full of interesting news in connection with the new Railroad, that we give it publicity. We hope our Centre county people will arouse to action:

MIFFLINBURG, Mar. 9, 1869.

A. B. HUTCHISON, Esq.:—At a Railroad meeting, held here yesterday, Union county was fully represented, and an organization was effected for the purpose of extending a road from Lewisburg, through Union county, westward. It was the wish of the meeting that a joint meeting of Union and Centre counties be held (probably at Aaronsburg, about April 8th,) for the purpose of uniting all the favorable interests. A committee (of which I was one) opened correspondence with Mr. Coburn, Peter Wilson, Mr. E. Blanchard, of Bellefonte, and others along the line, to enlist the aid of Centre county so as to effect an organization then and there, for a through road to Bellefonte, to connect with the Snow Shoe Co., via. Bealsburg. The time is short, and I fear the slow process of correspondence may too long delay a proper understanding, and I write you to suggest that you announce an early day for a meeting of your Centre county friends of the project, and if Aaronsburg, April 8th, will suit your meeting, then a general meeting, of all the friends, and all interested along the line, will be called, and an effort made to effect such a measure as will secure immediate operations. It seems to me there are enough interested to form a corporation to secure the road if they can but be organized. Please confer with Mr. Blanchard, of the Snow Shoe Co., and see if you cannot agree upon a call for a conference of your Centre co. friends for the purpose of agreeing upon a time and place for a joint meeting of Union and Centre counties, and enlisting an interest in this project.

There is perfect harmony of action here, and Union county will do her full share of the work. The Lewisburg delegation here cordially approved, and were eager for action.

Very respectfully yours, &c.,
J. R. ORWIG.

UNION TOWNSHIP.—In a recent flying visit to Buffalo township we were pleased and delighted to witness the improvements made there since we last visited that place. We have not been in Buffalo since 1860, when we made a speech two hours long, in which we labored to show that the only way to save the Government was to elect Abraham Lincoln. Time has proved that we were right. The Government has been saved and no township is in the county did more, or sent more men in proportion to their population, to aid in its salvation, than did Buffalo and Snow Shoe townships. Notwithstanding the great drain of men, improvements in these townships were not stopped as the appearance of the whole country abundantly proves.

The people there are very busy putting in their timber, preparatory to the spring freshet. We saw some splendid logs belonging to our old friends Smith & Rhoads, at Sterling Landing; among these we saw several 85 feet sticks, straight as a line, and free of knots. Our friend G. R. Beak, is as busy as a nailer, getting through with his contracts for Smith & Rhoads, and other parties. George is A. No. 1 lumberman, and "pushes things," like Gen. Grant, right through with a rush.

Among the many improvements we witnessed on our visit to Burnside township, was the splendid residence of Dr. M. Stewart, at Pine Glenn. The Doctor has built himself a magnificent house, equal to any in Bellefonte, on an eminence commanding a view of many miles. He has planted a number of beautiful trees, and in a few years will have a place that cannot be surpassed in beauty, romance and good taste. Such men as Dr. Stewart are an honor to any community, or country.

We had not time to call and see the dry goods establishments of our friends Hoffer, Bowers & Co., and May, Loeb & Co., in Snow Shoe tp. As they have not advertised in the REPUBLICAN, we must infer that each firm is doing all the business they are able to do and do not want their names in the paper. If this is so, we hope these gentlemen will excuse us for saying that we are personally acquainted with the men composing both of the aforesaid "firms," and have always found them very clever, honest men; and we presume their customers have realized this truth to the full, or they would not stick so well.

Some time soon, we intend to spend two or three days in these Townships, when we will have a story of some kind either good or bad, to tell of the mining regions, the lumbermen, business men, merchants, hotel keepers, the price of land, its quality, &c., &c.

Preparing the Soil for Apple Trees.

Few soils in their natural state are in a suitable condition for the reception of apple trees. New land is certainly far preferable to that which is old and partially or wholly worn out, but neither are in a proper condition for an orchard, and some thorough system of preparation should be applied to them before being used for fruit trees. The method of preparing soils should be varied according to their nature; if naturally deep and rich, then a good, deep plowing is all that will be absolutely necessary. But those persons who are about planting a young orchard should not forget that years of time may be gained by bestowing a little extra care at the start, and that trees in a thoroughly prepared soil will be as far advanced in five years as those which receive but ordinary care will in ten.

All soils, whether new or old, rich or poor, light or heavy, should be worked deep, for herein lies the fundamental principle of all good and successful gardening; and good farming and orcharding is but gardening extended. It is not always necessary or advisable to invert to a great depth, and thereby throw the poor subsoil on the surface, but to loosen up the soil to a depth of one foot or more is beneficial to all crops, no matter how small or delicate.

There are soils which do not require deepening, but they are the exception and not the rule; consequently, we leave them out of the list under consideration at this time. We will suppose, for instance, that a farmer wishes to plant an apple orchard this spring upon soil that is rich enough for the purpose, without applying any fertilizing materials whatever; and, further, we will suppose that he knows enough about apple trees not to plant them in a swamp, or in ground so stony that it cannot be cultivated; neither will we expect him to turn over an old sod that has not been plowed for years, and use such land for an orchard until the tough roots of grass and weeds have become, at least, partially decompored. But we expect that our farmers will plant the trees in the best soil on his farm, provided it is favorably situated and is naturally dry and good.

The first thing to be decided is the distance apart at which the trees are to be planted—whether twenty-five, thirty, or forty feet; the second number will afford room enough for varieties of moderate growth, but where the land is very rich and not too expensive, more space may be allowed.

Lay out the ground by driving a stake at each end of the space to be occupied by a row of trees, then plow the lands into beds of the same width as the rows are apart, commencing exactly in the middle between the rows, and back-furrow until the entire space is plowed, finishing with a dead-furrow just where the trees are to be planted. Plow as deep as possible in the deep furrows; going through three or four times will do no harm, but much good.

Proceed in the same manner, until the land to be occupied is all plowed, then put on the harrow and pulverize the soil as thoroughly as possible, then plow it again, and turn the land back into its former position.

If a more thorough preparation can be afforded, then the land may be cross-plowed in the same manner. By adopting this system of preparation the soil is broken up fine, and left with an even surface, while its great depth will be just where the trees are to be planted. If the first plowing can be done in the fall of the year it would be better than doing both in spring, or if the trees are to be planted in autumn, let the spring plowing be done with reference to this subject, and throw up into beds accordingly.—Some of our orchardists recommend throwing the land into beds, and planting the trees on the ridges, but this plan we do not consider a good one, because it necessitates the keeping of the lands in beds, or the roots of the trees will soon become exposed. Level culture is always preferable in a climate like that of the United States, and if the land is too wet to admit of it then it should be underdrained, as this is far cheaper in the end than to be continually throwing up beds for the rains to wash down again.

If the soil to be used for an orchard is heavy clay, then subsoiling, as well as plowing, must be resorted to, if good results are to be expected. Digging deep and wide holes for the reception of trees is a system almost universally recommended in this country, but in nine cases out of ten, these holes are but the receptacle of water, which collects from the surrounding soil, and it does more harm than good. We like the idea as well as the practice of deep culture, but want the soil all deep, and if we cannot secure this, then a wide deep furrow across the entire field is far better and more readily obtained with a plow than a little deep soil under each tree. If manure is required, then it may be applied to the dead furrows after the first plowing, and thoroughly mixed with the soil at the second. This is our system of preparing ordinary good soil for an apple orchard. We like it, and others may, by giving it a trial.—Hearth and Home.

Soap suds should never be wasted on washing day, but should be poured for the garden.

Asparagus.

From the 20th of March to the 1st of April, the asparagus beds should have the coarse part of the manure with which they have been covered during winter taken off, and as soon as dry enough the rest carefully forked-in, all clods removed and the top-soil nicely pulverized with a rake. A dressing of coarse salt—fish salt will answer—should be applied the first week in April. The ground should be well covered with the salt, but care must be taken that it does not come in contact with box-edging, plants and small trees, as it is fatal to them.

In setting out new asparagus beds, if roots one or two years are planted, let them be about one foot apart each way, the crowns of the roots being from three to four inches below the surface. The soil should be at least eighteen inches in depth and made as rich as it can be. Apply no salt until after the plants produce a crop, which will be the third year.

Beds can be made as early in March as the season will admit of, but care must be taken to perform the work in the best manner.

There is no reason in the world why every farmer and family having a garden should not have an asparagus bed. There is no superior to it, and it comes before we can get anything else, except spinach and cauliflower: the latter, however, is both troublesome and costly. When an asparagus bed is once established, and regularly covered in the winter with a good coating of rich manure, and salted in the spring, it will last, without other trouble and expense, from twenty-five to thirty years.—Germantown Telegraph.

Diseases of Farm Stock.

A correspondent of the Journal of Agriculture proposes the following question to the readers familiar with chemistry in its applications to vegetables and animals:

"The idea has been suggested in some of my reading, that the multiplying of diseases among all kinds of farm stock may be owing to the fact that certain qualities of ingredients which are always found in virgin soils, and which are essential to the healthy development of animal organisms, have become so far exhausted that the vegetation—the feed now produced is deficient in those elements, and hence these various diseases.

Is there any ground for this theory? Is it possible that iron, for instance, which forms so important a part of the animal structure, may be abundantly supplied to vegetation growing on virgin soil, and through it, to cattle, and yet may, by long cultivation, be so entirely absorbed from the soil that the vegetation growing there will be entirely destitute of that element? I do not believe this theory, nor do I entirely disbelieve it, for it is easy to see that there may be many grains of truth in it.

Dentists tell us that one cause of teeth decaying in early life is because the system is not supplied with proper food to form enamel. The same general law may apply to domestic animals. Who can tell?"—Rural N. Yorker.

The Best Position for Grapes.

Some persons think that grapes ripen best on trellises, others prefer arbers; some approve of keeping the vines high, and others advocate low training. Who shall decide when doctors disagree? We had an opportunity this year of seeing at least some of these positions tested, for a Hartford prolific vine of ours, which was planted against a board fence in a corner of our garden, for the purpose of covering an arbor or summer house, bore heavily, some of the bunches being on the canes which were trained against the fence, some on those which covered the side of the arbor, and some on the top or roof.

The bunches which were close to the fence were loose and straggling, with small berries; those on the side of the arbor were better; but the best of all were those which grew on the top and hung down under the foliage, so that the rays of the sun never reached them. The bunches were compact and well shouldered, and the berries large and of a better flavor than those which were exposed to the sun; they ripened sooner than the others. A young vine which grew on the ground without any support bore one bunch, and this ripened earlier than any of those which were trained on trellises or arbors. In Maderia the vines are allowed to run along the ground and clamber over the uneven rocky surface, with excellent results.—Ex.

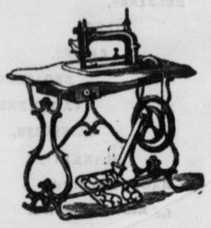
Farmers as a class should discuss their vocation and interests more exclusively than they are in the habit of doing. The information they possess and may command, should be generally disseminated, digested, and bro't within the scope of practice; and the means to effect this lie in Farmers' clubs, agricultural books and journals. Winter gives the farmer some leisure, which should be improved in every practical way to gain such knowledge as will direct manual labor to more effective results.

The Essex Banner asserts that small quantities of sunflower seed mixed with the food of a horse, will impart a fine gloss to his hair, while it is also a certain cure for founder, if given immediately after the ailment is discovered.—In the latter case, about a pint of the seed should be mingled with the oats or chopped feed, when a cure will be effected. The prescription is not a costly one, and can hardly prove harmful to the animal, should it fail to effect a cure.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

EDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.



In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN ON THE MACHINE GRATUITOUSLY.

Lessons may be taken if desired with a view to test the Machine, or to become better acquainted with it before deciding to purchase. Samples of work will be furnished upon application at
